

Fort Hall was a small and poorly constructed fort on the Eastern border of Idaho. It was built by Nathaniel Wyeth but taken over by the Hudson Bay Company. Travelers rested here and bought supplies if any were available.