

Lesson 2

READER'S NOTEBOOK

Name _____

Date _____

Connect to Writing

A Royal MysteryGrammar: Connect to WritingNo Sentence Variety

I would like you to read these paragraphs about making movies. Making movies used to be very different from the way it is today. I wonder what you know about making movies already.

Varied Sentence Types

Read these paragraphs about making movies. How different the process used to be from what it is today! What do you know about making movies already? Read on to find out more.

Activity Change each underlined declarative sentence to another kind of sentence. Write the new sentences on the lines below.

People have been making movies since the early 1900s. I wonder what making the earliest movies was like. I think watching a very old movie is exciting. You can find some of them on the Internet.

The earliest movies were not very complicated. I do not want you to think making those earliest movies was easy. The cameras were very big and hard to move around. They only recorded pictures in black and white. There was no sound either, so the actors couldn't speak. It is safe to say that people who made early movies had to work very hard.

1. (interrogative)

2. (exclamatory)

3. (imperative)

4. (exclamatory)