My big brother Eric had to chuse between delivering newspapers and finishing an art project before school. I offered to help. "I will exacute delivery of your newspapers while you finish your project." He agreed, grabbing his bottle of glew, saying I was a fine yewth. I knew his paper roote because I had often helped him. During my bike cruze along the way, I met Wendy, who was playing her fload like a cartune musician. She agreed to help me so I wouldn't loos my perfect attendance record. I took one side of the avanue and Wendy took the other. We finished early and enjoyed a morning veiw of the autumn sun shining like a jewal. Eric tied up the loos ends of his project, and we all kept the feeling of accomplishment as a souvanir of our teamwork. Wendy invited me to dinner that night for a bowl of her mother's steew!
