As a grade-school teacher, I was tired from educating students about what a homofone and a honograph were, how biologie played a part in everyday life, and how to use a mickroscope. When I got a telegraf from my cousin inviting me to Alaska, I was ready to use a megafone to announce my departure! Instead, I relied on the telephone. Since I look at every trip as a learning adventure, I packed my telascope, made a photocopy of some information about fossils in Alaska, and set off.

Once I got to Alaska, I discovered that my cousin lived in a remote cabin. Other than a mikrowave, a radio, and a computer, he had few modern conveniences. He even had the time to write letters using calligraphy. I couldn't wait to get outside and look for fossils—and, of course, to report back everything to my students!
